COURT OF APPEALS REVERSES MURDER CASE SENTENCES

John Rooney and Paris Martin, Both Given Life Imprisonment, to Have New Trial of Cases

HIGHER COURT HOLDS SPECIAL TERM ILLEGAL

The Court of Appeals sitting in Frankfort Tuesday reversed the opinions of the Circuit Court in the trials of John E. Rooney, who was charged with the murder of Ed Baker July 20, 1921, and Paris Martin, who is charged with the murder of Roy Sasser on June 21, 1921.

Rooney has been convicted twice and given life sentences each time. The first trial was held during the October term of the Circuit Court in 1921, when the case was appealed and the following February the Court of Appeals reversed the decision. He was tried again at a called term last July by a jury selected from Harlan county, and was again given life sentence. The reversal this time came because the Court of Appeals declared that the called term of the Circuit Court was illegal. Rooney will probably be tried again within the next few months.

Martin is charged, jointly with John Bussell, Jim Herrell and Vesta Owen, for the murder of Roy Sasser on the top of Cumberland mountain, overlooking Cumberland Gap, Tenn., who were all given trial jointly and the jury returned a verdict of guilty and fixed the punishment of each at life imprisonment. Their cases were appealed to the Court of Appeals and in February 1922, the lower court's decision was reversed. On the next trial Paris Martin was tried separately and resulted in mistrial—the jury failing to agree. He was tried again at the specially called term of the Bell circuit court July 27, 1922. At this time Judge A. T. Manning, of the Clay-Laurel circuit district presided and a jury from Knox county was ordered, which resulted in a conviction and another life sentence.

This sentence was reversed Tuesday on the same grounds that the special term of court was called as provided by law.

J. G. Rollins, I. G. Leabow and E F Baker represented Martin in his trial before the circuit and Court of Appeals

MANY HEAR TALK ON AMUSEMENTS

Dr. Thomas Condemns Objectionable Picture Shows, Dancing and Card Playing

Perhaps the largest number of persons who have attended a Trigg Thomas meeting so far heard him speak last night on "Hurtful Worldly Amusements." Dr. Thomas directed his attacks against objectionable picture shows, card playing and dancing. The evangelist handled this subject in an exceptionally able manner, making no compromises and giving no uncertain sound, yet saying nothing to give offense to any serious-minded persons.

These revival meetings, which have aroused a great interest by no means confined to the Presbyterian Church, will close Sunday night. Each evening many persons come forward to give Dr. Thomas their hand and record a decision for Christ, either by confession of Christ or rededication of their lives.

The opportunity to make this decision will be given at each meeting until they close.

Dr. Thomas will speak tonight on "The Fellow Who Got Married and other Excuses." His subject tomorrow night is, "The Second Coming of Christ," and Saturday night is "The Unpardonable Sin." A great mass meeting for men and boys will be held at the church at 3 p. m. Sunday at which time the evangelist will speak on, "The Meanest Man in Middlesboro."

FEDERAL OFFENSE TO MISREPRESENT AGE, RECRUITER SAYS

Boys under eighteen who forge a certificate showing they are over eighteen can be punished by a federal prison sentence, according to George E. Burke, army recruiting sergeant who is doing work in Middlesboro. A case such as has been mentioned happened here a few days ago, he asserted. After the boy had been sent off the sergeant was notified by the recruit's parents that he was only fifteen.

Three local boys have recently enlisted for infantry service in the Hawaiian Islands. These are: Curtis A Cook, Elmer Hampton and Edward Haskins.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 1.—George Stephenson will be buried tomorrow. His body has been in an undertaking establishment here the last eight days under constan tvigil of relatives who insisted he was not dead but in a state of suspended inanimation. Eight physicians performed an autopsy and that settled it. Stephenson was formerly a physician but renounced medicine in favor of evolution which led him to believe the mind controls the body even to the extent of enabling temporary departure of life in order that the body may be revivified with all diseases eliminated.

TWO HELD FOR WATCH THEFT

Ike Epps and Smith Frost Bound to Grand Jury, Charge Robbing J. C. Bowling

Ike Epps and Smith Frost were bound over to the grand jury on charges of robbing J. O. Bowling of a fifty dollar watch Saturday evening. Preliminary hearing of the case took place in police court before Arthur Rhorer, acting city judge, this morning. The amount of their bond was fixed at $500 each.

According to the testimony of the witness, Bowling, Epps and two others had been out driving during the afternoon. At night, Bowling testified, he and Epp stopped at an old building and that the latter went out to get some whiskey. He did not return but a man whom Bowling described as Frost Smith entered the place, and told Bowling to give up his watch, that he was under arrest. The watch was surrendered to the unknown man.

Policeman Reese Watkins testified that he found the watch in a room occupied by Smith Frost and Ike Epps and had brought it to police headquarters. Bowling described the watch as his property Monday morning.

Testimony was introduced by the commonwealth to prove that Ike Epps had attempted to sell the watch in Middlesboro Saturday evening.

BANKS TO FLOAT $60,000 LOAN FOR BELL COUNTY

Fiscal Court to Take Care of Current Indebtedness and Arrange Loan for Current Expenses of County

F. A. HEATH MADE AUDITOR TO DIRECT COUNTY BUDGET

The Bell county fiscal court has arranged with the four banks of the county, The National Bank of Middlesboro, the Citizens' Bank and Trust Co, the First State Bank of Pineville, and the Bell National Bank, to float a loan of about $60,000 which will take care of the current indebtedness. The loan will be divided equally between the four banks.

This plan was agreed upon at the secret session of the court held Tuesday in Pineville. The court also agreed at this time to arrange such loans as might be necessary to carry on current expenses and to pay the fixed salaries of the different county officers.

Most of the financiers of the county think this loan negotiation a very wise move. It will put Bell county on a cash basis, making its warrants bring par value in every case. It will, too, they feel, save the county the humiliation of passing their obligations on year after year, paying interest on the same.

The fiscal court at this session elected F. A. Heath county auditor and it will be his business to keep tab on the budget to see that the court lives within its resources.

RUHR ISOLATION FROM GERMANY BEGINS TODAY

Forbid Coal and Coke Exportation—May Extend to Steel and Manufactured Articles—No Reaction From Germany

RAIL STRIKE STILL EFFECTIVE, COAL PRODUCTION DECLINES

By Associated Press.

Industrial isolation of the Ruhr valley from unoccupied Germany, began today. With the tightening of the industrial cordon about the valley production of coal continues to decline. The railroad strike is effective throughout the entire valley, and there is a growing shortage of cars threatening enforced suspension of mines. As a result of the strike likewise, few trains run into the Rhineland being operated by French crews. An increasing tension between the Essen population and occupying troops is reported. In Essen and other towns reports that France had broken with England at Lausanne over the Near East question caused premature jubilation. Headlines in an Essen newspaper declared "certain war between Great Britain and France."

By Associated Press.

DUESSELDORF, Feb. 1.—An order prohibiting the export of coal and coke from Ruhr to unoccupied Germany has been in force since midnight. There was no reaction from Germany up to only this afternoon. The French announce that should Germany fail to come to terms the interdiction upon exports will be extended to steel, iron and other manufactured articles now permitted to enter Germany.

PUBLIC CO-OPERATION IN LAW ENFORCEMENT

There are a number of people who are ever ready to set up a howl about how the laws are being enforced, who take delight in boldly saying that the police department is not doing its duty. As a rule these same persons may see a man intoxicated, flourishing a gun, selling whiskey or violating the law in some other manner and pass calmly on. It may be that he did not think of notifying the authorities of the misdemeanor but it is very probable that he did think of it but failed to act.

Our chief of police has invited any citizen of Middlesboro who knows an offense is being or has been committed to immediately notify the police department so that it will lose no time in getting on the trail of the violator. When the full cooperation of the law-abiding element is secured then, and not until then, we will have a city that is morally clean.

Almost any citizen here will tell you that liquor is being sold at a certain drug store, pool-room or barber shop. Many of them can tell of instances where they have actually seen it sold. Comparatively few violations are reported to the police, however, mainly through mistaken ideas of loyalty. Most men take the position that as long as they are not being personally harmed, other men may do as they please.

The boot-legger that you know may not harm you but how do you know that he will not sell whiskey to your son or others dear to you? Better play safe and do all you can to have him punished. You may be rendering the offender a real service by keeping him out of further trouble.

The real cause of the flagrant violations of the whiskey laws here and elsewhere is the indifference of those not directly interestd.

If all the good citizens of Middlesboro would give their information to the police tonight, the liquor traffic would have ceased to exist by tomorrow.

OUTDOOR LIFE

If the boys you meet Feb. 8 seem to be raising more of a rumpus than usually, it'll be in celebration of an event very important to Young America.

The Boy Scouts movement was inaugurated and officially launched in this country Feb. 8, 1910, two years after Robert S. S. Baden-Powell had the organization in England. The general purpose of the Boy Scouts is to train lads in good citizenship, manhood and self-reliance. Besides displaying considerable knowledge of psychology, assured its success in adopting uniforms for its members.

Once get him wear a uniform and almost anything. Some of the original movements that have been successful if an attractive uniform went with membership. Maybe that's the way to enforce prohibition—officially permit abstainers to wear something like a red coat.

Did it ever occur to you that the uniform is the first image that comes to your mind at mention of Boy Scouts?

Few of us have an accurate idea of the values the young generation get from the Boy Scouts. A scout starts as a tenderfoot, then works up by merit and ability, to second-class scout, finally to first-class.

To be a first class scout a boy has to be able to swim 50 yards. He must have at least $2 in a savings bank. He must know how to wig-wag signals by flags. He has to be able to administer first-aid in case of accidents such as severed arteries and drowning. He must know how to read maps and make them, handle an ax, judge distances and be able to cook for campers.

The Boy Scout pledges obedience to parents, kindness to animals, courtesy to all. He has instilled into him a high code of honor and practical applications of the Golden Rule and Good Samaritanism.

The best thing done by the Boy Scouts is that it takes its members back to nature. The closer we keep to nature, the better for our nation. There is always hope for a civilization whose boys are prowling in the woods, hiking cross-country, studying birds and flowers and breathing fresh air.

In our half-mad swarming in cities, we gave the boy a raw deal, stripped him of his rightful playgrounds, caged him up like an animal and handicapped him with unhealthful environment.

For all this, the Boy Scouts movement is in the nature of an antidote.

This would be a whole lot better country to live in if the grown-ups started a similar organization to develop the same ideals of brotherhood and get us out in the open country occasionally, away from filth, poisonous air, maddening racket and nervous tension.

We need an organization of Men Scouts and Women Scouts.

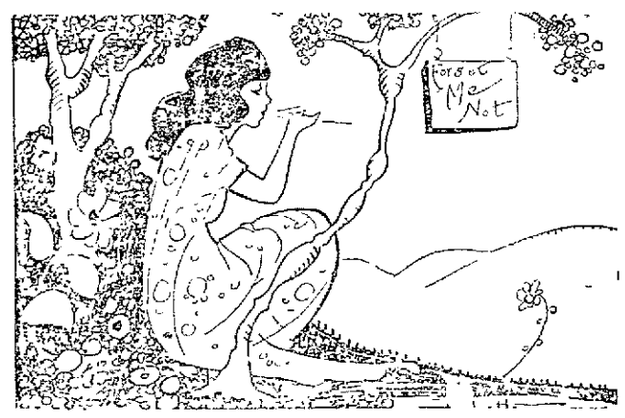
Adventures of The Twins

By Olive Roberts Barton



"Oh say," said Nancy one day "to Nick, "I think I'll send some valentines myself. I'm going to Forget-Me-Not, the little fairy, and get her to help me make up some verses."

"All right I'll go to," said Nick. "That is if Mr. Stamps can spare us."

"Sure!" nodded the little fairy postman. "My helper, Stridealong, is cured of his rheumatism and says he'll be back to deliver mail tomorrow. He will help me to sort the letters while you two are away."

"Oh, thank you," said Nancy. "And will you tell us where Forget-Me-Not lives?"

"She lives in a place in Fairyland called Bleeding-Heart House. She writes the kind, loving valentines. Just across the street from her lives Jack Cut-Up. He writes the comic ones that aren't so kind."

"Then let's go to see Jack Cut-Up first, Nancy," said Nick. "I want to send a valentine to Flap Doodle. You know! He's the purple fairy who flies with his ears and tried to kick Mr. Peerabout, the moon-man, off the moon."

"Oh, yes let's!" agreed Nancy. "He was the one that stole the Fairy Queen's wand. I remember how mean he was!"

So off they flew the two of them in their Magic Green Shoes, to the place in Fairyland where the valentine fairies lived.

Forget-Me-Not blew them a kiss and Jack Cut-Up turned a somersault upon their arrival.

"A valentine!" cried Jack. "Sure! I can make you one in a minute. I know Flap Doodle and what a nuisance he is. How's this?

"Who stole the Fairy Queen's wand?
Who emptie dsome salt in the pond?
Who put tacks on the Milky Way?
Who drove the poor Moon-Man away?
Who flops his great ears and grins like a poodle?
None other my dears, than Flappy Flap Doodle!'"

"That's fine," said Nick, "I'll take it."

But Nancy looked doubtful. "I think it's rude even to send to a bad fairy," said she.

AN IDEAL

By Berton Braley

This would would be a heaven,
With hope and love its leaven,
With beauty all about us and with laughter in the air.
And not the least upheaval
Of sin or shame or evil
A world devoid of trouble or of battle or of care;

Faith never would grow dim in
The hearts of men and women,
We'd walk our paths in gladness and charity and peace.
With spirit true and tender
We'd fill the world with splendor,
And all the hate and jealousy and quarreling would cease;
Life would become a vision
Or happiness elysian,
The world a perfect paradise to hold us in its thrall,
It 'mid our plots and plans and schemes,
We'd realize one-half the dreams
Our happy mothers dreamed for us when we were very small!

THE ONE-MAN WOMAN

By Ruth Agnes Abeling.

KATE WARD, Widow of DAN WARD, has a visitor, CHINATOWN ALICE, who says Dan was father of her child.

DOROTHY. Kate is much perturbed. A few evenings later she and her father.

JUSTIN PARSONS, find the unconscious victim of an auto crash near their home and carry him in. Recovering he says he is JAMES LATHAM. He woos Kate, who, fond of him, yet clinging to Dan's memory, does not know what to do. It develops that Latham knew Dan. He takes Kate to a fishing shack the latter owned and shows her a trunk he thinks may contain papers throwing light on Dan's past, but they find no documents inside. Latham presses his suit. Kate thinks somewhat inopportunely, and they part on rather cool terms.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

Justin Parsons was looking at the trunk which had been put on the veranda the night before, when Kate appeared in the door next morning.

"Where did this come from, Kate?" he asked.

"James Latham and I brought it last night father," she said, "it was Dan's."

"Looks as if it might have done considerable traveling." Justin examined the baggage while he talked.

Kate didn't answer. There was nothing for her to say. She and the trunk were strangers. That part of his life which the trunk represented Dan had never shared with her. She wondered vaguely as she watched her father, if Alice had known something of that. Perhaps, she thought, perhaps Alice had known more of his leisure hours than she.

The idea grew on Kate. She became jealous—jealous of something which couldn't exist in the present and which was only a possibility of the past. Her answers to Justin's attempts at conversation were short, preoccupied. Her whole thought was centered on Alice. She must see the girl. She must have it out with her. She must know whether she were in spirit the widow of Dan Ward or whether the thing had amounted to a mere legality.

At length she sat down at her desk, composed a note, sealed it, then set out for the village postoffice.

As she dropped the letter in the box she glanced at it and smiled whimsically. It was addressed to "Miss Alice in care of Sing Loy."

Kate smiled on her way home. She even ventered to think of James Latham. She had decided upon a course. She was quite happy, for her mind could be at rest, at least until an answe to her not came.

She wondered whether Latham would make any attempt to see her in the future. They had parted in a not quite friendly spirit. He had broken a promise and she had not been indulgent with it.

Why hadn't she been, she wondered?

Women always liked to have men break promises when the breaking was a compliment! She should have been happy that he did. And, as she looked back over the thing, she believed that she was. She found herself hoping, in spite of her torment of jealousy over Dan a few hours before, that James Latham would seek her out again and continue to break his promise!

Uncertain of one man, she wanted to flirt with many, for such is the heart of woman!

WAYS WE HAVE WALKED

Ways we have walked are windows in a world
Whose walls are black and high,
save for the night
That falls from these; but whither it is hurled
A wonder wakes, transfiguring my night.
Where once was darkness shaped of loneliness,
I see the gleam of little pathways
shine,
And backward, down the crowded
year I press.
Tracing again your footsteps there—
and mine.

The long, long lane that leads to Dennismore
The little trail where pines and heaven meet
A silver path of moonlight on the shore
Above White Crags, make beauty in this street;
For far and high, like windows in a room,
They drop old dreams to light the present gloom.

MORNING POOL ROOM SERVICES CONTINUE TO DRAW CROWDS

"Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." was the subject of Rev Trigg Thomas' address at the Hub pool room at 9 o'clock this morning. The room was again packed with men who were glad to give fifteen minutes of their time to the service. About 150 were present.

"It is man's nature to want to serve something," declared the evangelist, 'and he will serve either God or the devil. Joshua commanded the people to choose whom they would serve. We must all come out and make that decision."

"Just as sure as a man violates a law of this country he will suffer for it whether his crime is found out or not. You may have a hundred dollars or a thousand dollars that you gained dishonestly, but that money will never do you any good."

Rev. Thomas will speak tomorrow morning at the same place, the subject of his sermon being "The fine young Jew who won by losing."

TRIGG THOMAS KIWANIS CLUB SPEAKER TODAY

Addresses Members on Character, "What Men Are Before God"—Urges Its Formation Through Church and God

DR. J. A. GRAY CHAIRMAN OF MEETING TODAY

The Rev. Trigg A. M. Thomas spoke to the Kiwanis Club at its regular luncheon today noon, on building character. The address carried the conviction which Dr. Thomas' straightforward and sincere manner always does. Dr. J. A Gray was chairman of th meeting and introduced the speaker.

"Character is the thing that determines real men," said the speaker, in beginning. "It is what you are before God, or, as Moody defined it, 'what you are in the dark.' Your reputation is merely what men think you are. You alone are custodian of your character. You alone can destroy your character and do it in five minutes."

"Wealth is not a test of character," the speaker said, "nor social position, physical strength, intellectual power. It is something above and beyond these.

"Men can always strengthen their character," Dr. Thomas went on to say, "taking a stand in the church. The church is the biggest institution in the world outside the home, and the man or woman living in a community, prospering and making a good living there, who is not connected with the church, is a poor citizen and a bad influence. Show me a home or community where the Bible the church, and all 'that goes with them is disregarded," he declared, "and I shall show you an unhappy, characterless, and usually criminal home or community. But show me one where the Bible is honored and the church upheld and there you will find a pure and wholesome atmosphere and a noble people of character..

"Jesus Christ stands out as the great example," said the speaker, "and in proportion as men live up to Him, as an ideal, so does their character grow greater and greater." The real test, he declared, was to stand out against wrong, firmly and uncompromisingly, if it costs social position, money, reputation, or even your life. "The biggest thing the Kiwanians can do for Middlesboro, as a proof of their character," said Dr. Thomas, "is to put it undisputably on the side of God, or Christ and the church, the lack of which is this city's greatest need."

In closing Dr. Thomas complimented Middlesboro, which he said he would always remember, and he paid sincere tribute to Dr. Gray who leaves Middlesboro next week, saying "Never have I found fellowship with a man more considerate, more courteous or more enjoyable than Dr. Gray."

There was little business before the club today. E. B. Whiteside of Louisville drew the attendance prize. A letter from A. L. Lunsford of Banner Fork asking what Middlesboro was going to do about a baseball team this year was referred to J. R. Ramey. A telegram was read from A. M. Kinnaird in New York saying that he lunched with the New York Kiwanis Club today and that there was great applause there when he mentioned Middlesboro.

DISCUSS HIGHWAY MEETING PLANS

PINEVILLE, Feb. 1.—Plans for the Kentenva Highway Association meeting which will be held in Manchester Monday, and banquet at Barbourville that night, were discussed at the Kiwanis luncheon held at the Pineville Hotel Tuesday night. The following Kiwanians signified their intention of attending the meetings: P. T. Atkins, White L. Moss, Prof. J. J. DeWall, Dick Barker, R M. Watt, N. T Arnett, H. H. Alpers, G. W Johnson, Sam Ramsey, F Graham, E H. Mould and Graham Ware.

Senator Moss of Pineville and Major Helburn of Middlesboro, who are Bell County directors of the Association desire at least twenty representatives of this county at that meeting, and it was with this in view, together with the advantage that this road will be to this section of the state, that the twelve Pineville Kiwanians readily agreed to attend. At the meeting Monday the Clay County officials will doubtless decide which way the road will be constructed out of Manchester, whether it will go to London, to Barbourville, or through to Red Bird, and thence to Pineville and Middlesboro.

The following women were named as a reception committee for Ladies night to be held at the Continental Hotel next Tuesday night: Mrs. Fred Graham, chairman, Mrs. Dick Barker, Mrs. R. M. Watt, Mrs. E. H Mould, Mrs Ed Samuels. Mrs R R Atkins and Mrs W R Morrison.

Following the luncheon the executive committee of the Kiwanis Club met and decided on a business program for the year, advocating more co-operation, better credit systems, buying at home, and co-operative advertising. Once a month an evening's program will be devoted to better business for Pineville, the first of this series having been held last week under the chairmanship of R. H. Charlton. The next business program will be given under the direction of N. T. Arnett and R. M. Watt February 20

A Little
BUSINESS MAN

One day a very small boy came to the bank with his grandmother, to open a savings account.

That grandmother was wise—she knew how to handle boys for she stood aside and let that little fellow attend to the business all alone.

He had to stand on his toes to talk to the man in the cage and he got down on his knees beside a chair to write his name and address for us—he was too small to write on the table.

When we handed him his little bank book he tucked it away carefully in his inside pocket and then told his grandmother he was ready to go.

As they left the bank the lad turned to look once at the bank—HIS BANK—with a look of genuine pride in his face. A man who had watched the proceedings smiled and said: "There goes a little business man," and we all agreed with him.

How about your boy?

Facts
About Child-Birth

AN eminent physician has shown to thousands of expectant mothers just how to be free from dread, and from much of the suffering which many mothers experience for months, right up to the moment when the Little One arrives!

Mrs. Wm. Washington, 107 Louise Ave., Nashville, Tenn., says: "There is positively no woman on earth that would be without 'Mother's Friend' during expectancy if she only knew the value of comfort."

"Mother's Friend" is externally applied to the region of the abdomen, back and hips. It relieves the tension on nerves and ligaments as month follows month. Finally, it makes child-birth a joy instead of a painful dread.

Use "Mother's Friend" as our mothers and grandmothers did. Don't wait, start today, and meanwhile write to Bradfield Regulator Co., BA-47, Atlanta, Ga., for a free wonderful book containing information every expectant mother should have. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" today. It is sold by all druggists—everywhere.
